

Fergus and Arthur...Residents at two Caressant Care Homes enjoyed wedding fashion shows on Monday, July 5. The second annual event, which pays homage to June as the most popular month for weddings, featured over 25 dresses from the 1970's right up to today's styles. All were modelled by staff, families and friends of the Activity Co-ordinators at both homes.

Debuting in Fergus Monday morning, the show moved to Arthur in the afternoon. Jennifer VanBeek, Activity Co-ordinator at Caressant Care Arthur, wore here wedding dress and emceed the events. She says the show was a "way to show residents how things have changed" and for staff to include them in their nuptials.

Residents also had a hand in the event by arranging bouquets for the models. An archway and other floral pieces added to the day's ambiance and cake was served as a special end to the shows.

Two flower girls, Bree Reinink and Hayley Bolen, participate in one of the Wedding Fashion Shows.
